12 – 14 September 2017 Marina Bay Sands Singapore

Singapore has pledged to reduce its emission intensity by 36% in 2030*. To achieve this, the next step in our Green Building Journey is to make a bolder and deeper impact on behavioural change in our community as progress in mitigating climate change and improving environmental sustainability requires people to be actively involved, co-operate and change their mindsets towards sustainability.

* From the level in 2005

For this, empowering and engaging people will be the key to turn them into change-makers. Our communities must come together to improve sustainability in our built environment.

Themed "Build Green: Be The Change", IGBC 2017 will focus on the catalysts of behavioural change at the individual, interpersonal and community levels. IGBC 2017 will be a platform for the sharing of ideas and exploring creative ways for more buildings to be green in our built environment.

What you can expect at IGBC 2017:

- Innovative and new presentation formats with more opportunities for participant engagement
- Dedicated tracks for greening tenant spaces within buildings
- Workshops on R&D topics such as "Roundtable Discussion on Zero Energy Building"
- Local and international green building case studies
